'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Now that the Fourth of July is over — we can settle down to work — and wait for the next vacation.

* * * *

Spring is over and the summer has come, but Dan Cupid is still enjoying his favorite indoor sport.

* * * *

It must be bad when some of the reckless young Romeos crib love poems from Swineburn, Browning and Longfellow and send them to their secret corrows without a credit line.

* * * *

And the said secret sorrows gush and cry prettily about the cleverness of the said young Romeos.

* * * *

And then there is the young lady who has six boy friends scattered along the coast, and whose greatest difficulty and worry is to keep them apart.

* * * *

One of these days the six are going to get together and compare notes.

* * * *

It'll make good reading on these dull summer days when there's little if any, excitement.

* * * *

Sunday is here — and with it will be the usual number of Sunday automobile accidents — and the lists of dead and injured.

* * * *

Driving on the highways on Sundays is a task — not a pleasure. And the sooner that drivers learn this, the sooner the accident rate will go down on Sundays.

* * * *

Speaking of automobiles, an eastern state has the right idea.

* * * *

It has barred from its highways all old cars, declaring they are a menace to traffic.

* * * *

Perhaps if California would follow this example it would be much better for the motoring public.

HALT BANDITS IN ROBBERY

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 5.—UP—Three bandits, one bearing a submachine gun, were halted in their attempt to hold up the Kroger Grocery & Baking company here today when one of the trio, firing into the floor to intimidate clerks, sent a bullet through the foot of their machine gun companion.

The trio fled and escaped in the automobile without having gained a cent of loot.

Escaped Youth Held In S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—UP—Theodore H. Cilley, 20 former Preston reform school inmate accused of murdering David Lindsay, former Fresnan, on June 12 was booked at the city prison today.

Cilley was arrested July 1 by Sheriff Walter A. Shay in San Bernardino.

Autos Collide On Seventh St.

Two automobiles collided on Seventh street early last evening. The cars were slightly damaged but the occupants escaped without injury.

John W. Miller of 1567 Chester avenue, Bakersfield, was the driver of one car and Charles Ebright of 532 Fifth street piloted the other.

MEXICANS RUN WILD AS RUM FLOWS FREE

PITTSBURG, July 5.—From the appearance of the Pittsburg city jail today, an unprejudiced observer might be led to think that yesterday was the Mexican Independence Day, rather than the national holiday of the United States.

The Mexican population of the city went fighting mad yesterday, and over a dozen fist slinging boys from south of the Rio Grande were booken in the city jail on charges ranging from common drunk to disturbing the peace.

The city jail looked like a rebel camp in Chihuahua this morning, following the Fourth of July celebration by the Mexicans.

Confiscated booze, vaporizing from New York slough, is said to have caused the trouble. The Pittsburg police have been pouring great quantities of the illicit liquor down the sewers recently, and the recent hot spell of the weather turned the liquor into steam.

The pungent vapor is said by police, to have turned the Mexican lads into veritable madmen, who immediately started in pairs and groups to make the Fourth of July resemble the Alamo.

Officer Ed Horr, who single handed rounded up more than a dozen of the law breakers, declared ha had never seen such a number of fights outside a prize ring, in his life.

"I was too busy to call for help" the officer declared, "As soon as I would grab one pair, another fight would start a block or so away. When I would reach that corner, two or three more would start where I had just left."

A shift in the wind is said to have saved the city from a full-fledged revolution.

Boat Capsizes Sixteen Drown

MOSCOW, July 5.—Sixteen persons were drowned in the Black sea today when a rowboat in which they were attempting to reach shore from a grounded excursion boat capsized.

The accident occurred near Oilivia, on the Crimean coast. The 45 persons aboard the steamer Sebastopol clambered aboard the rowboat when the vessel grounded on a sandbank, then began rowing toward shore, but the boat overturned.

THE WEATHER

POLICE HUNT AIR CRASH VICTIM

ALAMEDA, July 5.—At a late hour tonight the sea had refused to give up its dead, and bodies of the victims of the mysterious air crash into the bay off the Alameda port yesterday had not been found.

Despite police search with grappling hooks and drags, no trace of the occupant or occupants of the plane could be discovered.

Police are of the opinion that at least one of the men in the plane at the time of its 1000 foot dive into the water was Rene Medus, 21, who has been reported missing by his father, Rebe Medus.

Medus, a student of the Denny Wright flying school at the Oakland airport, disappeared at about the time of the sky crash. As the hours passed, and no word was received from the youth, his father reluctantly accepted the police theory that young Medus had been killed while joyriding in a "borrowed" plane.

The wrecked plane, definitely known to have been taken from the hangar without permission, was lifted from 20 feet of water yesterday, and police, upon finding it unoccupied, allowed it to settle once more.

Theory that there may have been more than one man in the plane at the time of the plunge was flouted by airport officials, who in their search for witnesses to the accident, came upon Mrs. Leland Cava of Berkeley and William Robertson of Alameda, both of whom declared they had seen the plane and there was only one occupant in it.

Bryce Dye, a printer, told investigators he had seen a man jump from the plunging aircraft when it was still about 200 feet from the water. J. D. Forbes confirmed his story, and stated he had seen the splash of the body.

POLICE GUARD TWO BANDITS

CHICAGO, July 5. —UP—Gangland's deadly ways of dealing with hoodlums who "know too much" haunted the angle of investigation into the murder of Alfred Lingle, Chicago reporter today, as a fresh broadside of editorial comment quickened public interest in the case.

Jack Zuta, vice baron who was the target last Tuesday night of a fusilade of shots in the loop as he was being given a "safe" lift in a police car, failed to appear in court today, as he had promised.

He stayed away, apparently because he considered himself as marked for death, despite police protection assured him. A. Roach, head of the state detective staff, had counted upon learning from Zuta, the identity of his assailants who may have been henchmen of Al Capone, trying to revenge the slaying of Lingle.

Under the necessity of again assisting Zuta, police at the same time thought of a means of safely returning Frank Foster from Los Angeles to Chicago.

Charged with participation in the Lingle murder because the gun used had been bought by him, Foster was considered worth taking special precautions with.

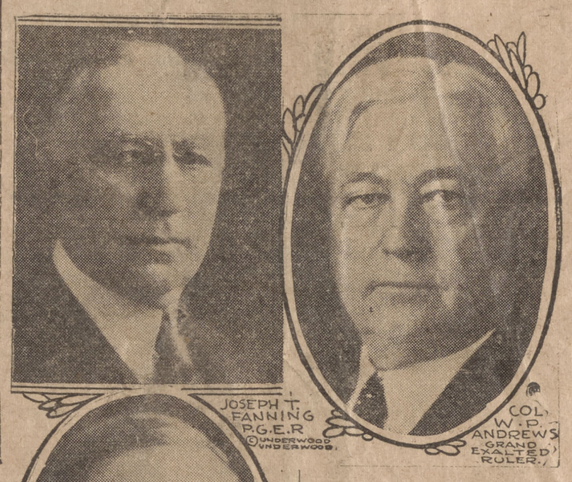
Elks Will Hold Reunion At Atlantic City on July 6



ATLANTIC CITY, July 5.—UP—Elks from all over the United States and Canada—and wherever members of that order may be found—are preparing for the annual convention of the Grand lodge which will take place here from July 6 to 10. The convention will be held in the ballroom of the Municipal Auditorium.

This is the eighth time that the Elks have come to this city in the sixty-six years of annual reunions. Col. Walter Pemberton Andrews of Atlanta is the grand exalted ruler of the Elks, having taken office at the Los Angeles reunion last year, succeeding Murray Hulbert of New York.

Community interest and civic welfare are two of the cardinal virtues of Elkdom, and during the year the Elks built many beautiful homes. A recital of this work will be embraced in the reports presented to the Grand Exalted Ruler. One of the most important committee reports will be that of John F. Malley of Springfield, Mass., Chairman of the Elks National Foundation trustees. The foundation was founded to accumulate a large sum of money to provide a nendowment fund for charity.

The trustees are all Past Grand Exalted rulers: John F. Malley, chairman; Raymond Benjamin, vice chairman, Napa, Cal.; John G. Price, secretary, Columbus; James G. McFarland treasurer Watertown S. D.; Charles E. Pickett, Waterloo, Ia.; Rightor, New Orleans; Charles H. Grakelow, Philadelphia.

35,000 EAGLES EXPECTED AT MEET

More than 35,000 visitors are expected in San Francisco during the week of August 11 to 16 to attend the three conventions of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

The principal gathering will be the 32nd international grand aerie convention, which will attract many thousands of members and their families from all parts of the United States and Canada.

The 1930 California State aerie of the order will take place at the same time, and will bring representatives from 100 aeries in the California jurisdiction. The national assembly of the Womens Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Eagles will be attended by some 2000 delegates.

Two trains, bearing delegates, bands and drum corps from Indiana aeries will arrive here on August 10, according to advices received from Otto P. Deluse, the past grand worthy president of the order, and president of the Indianapolis board of trade.

U. S. SEAMAN KILLED BY CHINESE

WASHINGTON, July 5.—UP—An American seaman was killed and a British sailor seriously wounded yesterday when a navy gunboat and a British warship were fired on at two points along Yangtse river, dispatches to the navy department said today.

Admiral Charles B. McVey, commanding the Asiatic fleet, radioed the firing was done by "Communists."

Daniel Elkin of Brooklyn, first calss seaman aboard the U. S. S. Guam, was killed at Yochow. At Chengling a member of the crew of the H. M. S. Teal was shot and badly wounded.

According to navy radio dispatcehs the Guam was escorting the river steamer Mehing up the aYntse. At Ychow, it was fired upon and Elkin received a fatal wound .

The Guam answered with 26 rounds of three inch shells, and 1200 rounds from machine guns, silencing the fire from shore.

McVay account of the Teal's clash at Chengling gave no details. He informed Secretary of Navy Adams there were 'no signs of foreigners" at Yochow.

TERMINAL IN SIGHT FOR RIGHMOND

The actual entry of the Great Northern railway into California, will undoubtedly be followed by a great era of development.

The new transcontinental railroad will establish a great terminal on the east side of the bay.

Whether the Santa Fe railroad, will be a part of the new system is not known at this time, but it been definitely stated that the tracks of the Western Pacific and the Sacramento Short Line will be used to gain an entry to the waterfront and industrial districts of the east bay section.

It is believed the Great Northern will use the tracks of the Western Pacific as far as Sacramento, then the Sacramento Short Line to Bay Point, and then the Santa Fe tracks into Richmond.

From Richmond, and running along the waterfront to Emeryville there are 1,900 acres of land, that is owned by the Berkeley Water Front company. The holder of the stock of this company has been shrouded in mystery for the past ten years, but it has been generally reported that it belonged to a transcontinental railroad.

The land of the Berkeley Water Front company starts just east of the Ford Motor company land. From reliable sources it has been learned that the Santa Fe some months back, purchased rights of way through lots south of Cutting, which would bring its tracks to the Berkeley Water Front company property.

All of these moves, which have been made very quietly, lends credence to the belief that the Santa Fe railroad is a part of the new system, or at least will work in harmony with it.

Plans have already been drawn for the filling and bulk-heading of the 243 acre tract of land just east of the Ford land. This improvement alone will cost $1,000,000. The improvement will give its owners a deep channel and a water frontage of about a mile in length.

The land is ideally located and would be very suitable for a terminal for a transcontinental railroad.

With the Santa Fe connecting with it, the way would be paved for a railroad line, along the water front as far as Emeryville, and tapping a vast industrial district.

The statement has already been made that in a short time, the new rail line would announce the location of a great industrial enterprise, on the land of the Berkeley Water Front company.

GANGSTERS IN DUEL OF DEATH

CLEVELAND, O., —July 5.—UP—Gangsters caught two of their enemies drinking in "Little Italy" cafe today and cut them down with gunfire before they could draw their guns.

The two dead men were identified with difficulty, so badly did the bullets riddle and mutilate their bodies. They are: Joe Porello, one of the seven Porello brothers who police say, shot their way to control of the bootleg corn sugar traffic; and Sam Oillicco, one of the Porello's associates.

Loaded pistols were found on both victims.

Police arrested two suspects.

MAN PREFERS HANGING TO JAIL TERM

A man and boy are dead as Fourth of July casualties in Albany.

Dave Ashew, 35, of Oakland committed suicide in the Albany city jail following his arrest on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

According to police reports, Ashew, who was being held in the jail in lieu of $1000 bail, hung himself in his cell between 2 and 3 p. m. yesterday morning.

The boy, Harvey Kentsel of Oakland, seven years of age, was struck by an automobile driven by White Grondoa of San Pablo.

Police declare the accident was unavoidable and Grondoa was freed.

According to police reports, the boy was crossing San Pablo avenue when the machine struck him.

3 DEAD FROM EXPLOSION

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 5. —UP—Fireworks stored in four buildings in Neptune township near here, exploded today, killing three persons and injuring five.

Sheets of flame spread out and set fire to adjoining wood in the sparsely settled section. All four of the buildings were wrecked. The structures comprised the fireworks factory of Frank Cimino.

The dead:

Dolores Renna, nine months old

Minnie Cimino, 9, daughter of the owner.

Consiglio Cimino, 72 father of Frank.

Frank Cimino, Jr., 11 months-old, believed to have been sleeping in one of the buildings is missing and it is feared he may have been killed.

The explosion thought to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, ripped off the roof of one of the buildings, showering fire and blazing fireworks for several hundred yards.

MOONEY, PAL MAY ESCAPE JAIL TERM

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—UP—Contrary to general opinion, there remains one open door thru which Tom Mooney and Warren K. Billings may walk to freedom, the United Press learned today from a thoroughly reliable source.

Most observers assumed that there was no chance for liberation of the pair after the California supreme court, in a decision made public yesterday, declined to recommend a pardon for Billings.

California has a law providing that convicts with more than one conviction for a felony cannot be pardoned without the favorable recommendation of the supreme

FLEAGLE DEATH DATE KEPT SECRET

CANON CITY, Colo., July 5.—UP—Officials of the Colorado State Penitentiary announced today that strictest secrecy will cloak the hanging of Ralph Fleagle, leader of the Lamar Bank bandit gang.

Warden Francis E. Crawford declared no information concerning the time of the hanging will be given out in advance, and beyond a bare announcement of the length of time required by the hanging machine to cause death, no information would be forthcoming.

Any possible hope of intervention by the governor was spiked today when Governor W. H. Adams declared "If any case ever justified capital punishment, it seems to me this one does."

Howard L. Royston and George Abshier, other members of the Fleagle gang, also were denied stays of execution.

The Fleagle clan began gathering today for the death week of Ralph Fleagle, which starts just after midnight.

His wife, mother and sister are already here. A brother, Fred, is expected tonight. None want to see the conedmned leader of the Lamar bank bandits, not even the wife.

If prison officials had any plan to hang Fleagle shortly after his death week started, they abandoned them, because of Fleagle's plea for clemency presented to Governor Adams Saturday.

Nothing will be done, prison officials said, until every likelihood of legal or executive action in the case is dispelled.

Fleagle suffered greatly from the heat today in his county death cell. He perspired freely, despite an electric fan and other ventilating devices.

Recently he asked to see the Catholic chaplain, Father Barrett, of the Benedictine order every day. He has not seemed interested in religion, however, but he just seems to want to talk to the priest.

The attempted smuggling of letters to Fleagle by his wife, through guards or convicts has been blocked. Nothing of harmful nature was contained in any of the missives.

CITY TWILIGHT LEAGUE IN LAST LAP

The final week of the 1930 Richmond City Twilight baseball league season will start tomorrow with the Odd Fellows possessing the narrow margin of one win over the closely-trailing Native Sons and Firemen.

Strong rivalry is certain to characterize the last week of the league play. All three leading teams have been staging a determined, even fight for first and second place honors, and the ultimate result is at present very, very uncertain.

The linkers are now the proud but precarious owners of a one game lead. They have won eight contests and lost one. The Native Sons and Firemen are tied for second position with seven victories and two losses each.

All three aggregations will have a chance during this week to climb to the top of the pile.

The Native Sons and Odd Fellows will tangle Tuesday afternoon while the Firemen are scheduled to clash with the Standard Oil nine Friday afternoon in the last league contest.

The outcome of the Native Sons-Odd Fellows scrimmage is extremely doubtful. Friday's contest is expected to result in a free victory for the Firemen, as the Standard Oil athletes have for the last month failed to apepar on the high school diamond when they were supposed to be present.

Inter-team rivalry has received added momentum as a result of the offer of the Mechanics Bank to present a loving cup to the winner of a three game series to be played between the first and second ranking teams in the league. This series will be played following the league schedule.

Tomorrow afternoon the Machinics Bank and Lions club nines are scheduled to meet at the high school. However, there is a probability that they will not meet due to the fact that their contest will have no effect whatever upon the final league standing as both teams are well down the ladder.

Plans Started For July 20 Motor Races

Final plans for the outboard motor races to be held on the Richmond inner harbor July 20 will be made at a meeting of the Richmond Boating association Thursday evening.

The coming regatta is the first boating event of importance ever held on the local waterfront, and is expected to draw entrants from all over California.

Another similar event will be held later in the year by the local boating association.

There has been an increasing number of outboard motor boats skimming the surface of the local inner harbor, and interest in the sport has increased incredibly during the last year.

Every Sunday these tiny craft are to be seen speeding along the waterfront at approximately 30 miles an hour.

Several local craft have also entered in state meets with success, notably the "Lur Alyse," owned by Dr. Francis Kent of Richmond. Kent won first place in a recent regatta he'd at Sacramento. He is spending this week-end on a trip in the "Lur Alyse" up the Sacramento river.

The attention of local outboard fans is at present being attracted by the races being held at Lucerne, Clear Lake, this week-end, although it is believed that no Richmond sportsmen have entered in the meet.

LEGION JUNIOR NINE TO PLAY FOR TITLE

The right to fight for the county American Legion Junior baseball title was won by the Richmond American Legion Juniors (Native Sons) Friday and yesterday when they handed two heavy defeats to the Bay Point nine.

In Friday's clash, the local boys took the Bay Pointers into camp with a score of 12 to 3.

Yesterday they trounced the Bay Point aggregation with an 11 to 1 score.

In both contests, the locals went on terrific hitting sprees. They earned 12 bingles in the first of the series and connected for 11 hits in yesterday's game.

Crocker was the hitting star for the Richmond team in Fridays' tangle, gaining three hits out of five times at bat.

Gordon Lemon occupied the mound for the Richmond athletes during the first game. He allowed eight hits and fanned 13 Bay Point sluggers. Gendera chucked for Bay Point.

Passoni twirled for the Richmond Juniors in yesterday's contest, allowing but six hits and fanning 10 men. Johnson threw for Bay Point.

The Richmond boys are now ready to tangle with Antioch in the finals of Contra Costa county American Legion Junior league competition. The final battle will be fought sometime this week.

CORBETT WINS DECISIVELY FROM CHAMP

By MAYNARD C. YOUNGS

Young Corbett III, uncrowned welterweight champion of the world.

But despite his victory over two world champions, Jackie Fields and Thompson, Corbett still remains only Young Corbett III of Fresno and Thompson is still Young Jack Thompson, welterweight champion of the world.

And unless the Thompson management loses its head, and agrees to a title bout with Corbett ,that is the way it will stand for some time.

Corbett beat the champion decisively, taking nine out of the ten rounds. He started strong in the first and kept the lead throughout the fight.

Only in the fifth round did Thompson make a flash of form. In that session the champion elected to trade punches with Corbett and connected with a clear right to the head, which staggerde the contender.

In the sixth the Fresnan came back strong and staggered Thompson repeatedly with rights to the head and lefts to the body.

In the ninth round Corbett had the champ on the verge of a knockout, staggering Thompson with a barrage of body punches. The champion's feet wilted from under him and he went down taking a count of nine. He came up a sick boy and was saved from a clean knockout by the bell.

The tenth round was barely weathered by the colored battler Corbett pounding him from corner to corner and hitting him with everything but the proverbial waterbucket.

Thompson is still the synthetic champ, but that is about all the honor that is coming to him. Always a rank in and outer, Thompson never looked less like a champion than he did Independence day. He refused to lead, and remained in his shell the entire route opening up only in the fifth round.

Corbett fought his usual battle although leading more than is his custom.

The uncrowned champion looked exceptionally good from the ringside and showed a versatility of form unexpected in the southpaw. His complete fight was about the same from start to finish however, scoring repeatedly with straight rights, and hooking his left to the midsection.

Willie Ritchie got the ned as referee of the bout and handled the situation in a commendable manner.

The fight was attended by a total of 12,888 fans, who paid $34,674.95 to see the champion take a shellacking. Thompson was guaranteed $20,000 and Corbett's 25 percent amounted to $7,668.83 leaving the promoters with $3006.12 for expenses and preliminaries. They figure to take a slight loss.

BIG BILL WINS WIMBLEDON FINALS

WIMBLEDON, England, July 5. UP—Big Bill Tilden, Philadelphia veteran, who was playing championships while his present day rivals still were practicing with tennis balls against barn doors, today climaxed the unprecedented American success in the Wimbledon championships with a straight set victory over Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Texas, in the men's singles finals.

The scores were 6-3, 9-7, 6-4.

The victory gave Tilden, who has been "relegated" to the athletic scrap heap for the past five years, his third triumph in the Wimbledon singles — the highest honors that the tennis world has to offer. The 37-year old Philadelphian previously won the Wimbledon championsuip in 1920 and 1921.

Since that time he has monopolized the United States championship, but until this year was unable to again reach the finals of the international event.

Tilden's triumph gave the United States its fourth championship of the 1,30 tournament and assured the Americans of a clean sweep over the world's greatest court stars. Finals in the fifth class — men's doubles — will be played Monday with Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, defending champions, playing their Davis cup team mates, George Lott and John Doeg.

The match was played before a record crowd, which included a distinguished gathering in the royal box. King George, Queen Mary and Prince George arrived as Tilden and Allison took the court and remained through the entire match. Other occupants of the royal box were Princess Helen Victoria, Princess Marie Louise, the former king and queen of Portugal, Marches de Merry del Val, Miss Regis Oliveira and Lord and Lady D'Abernon.

The royal gathering also witnessed the women's doubles finals, in which Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan defeated Miss Sarah Palfrey and Miss Edith Cross, and after the match, Mrs. Moody was presented to the King and Queen at the reception room in the clubhouse.

The Mrs. Moody-Miss Ryan victory marked the tenth time the latter, who now lives in London, has shared that title, and her later victory with Jack Crawford in the mixed doubles was her sixth in that competition.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan played steadily in every game and completely outclassed their rivals, although Miss Palfrey was the individual star of the match. She exchanged stroke for stroke with the hard-hitting Mrs. Moody and frequently out-volleyed the champion.

Miss Ryan's work at the net in the mixed doubles finals was a deciding factor in the American-Australian victory. The veteran woman star outshot several German rallies with superb net play while Crawford piled up points by his volleying.

Christian Science Lesson Subject

"God" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon today in all churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The citations which comprises the Lesson-Sermon includes the following from the Bible: "The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buck'er, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower. For who is God save the Lord? or who is a rock save our God? It is God that girdeth me with strength and maketh my way perfect" (Ps. 18:-2, 31, 32.)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "God, the great I AM; the all-knowing, all-seeing, all-acting, all-wise, all-loving and eternal; Principle; Mind; Soul; Spirit; Life; Truth; Love all substance; intelligence" (P. 587.)

Church and Sunday School

GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH
Northwest corner of Thirteenth and Barrett, Rev. Guy L. Hudson, pastor.

E. J. Evan, Sunday school superintendent, Mrs. W. H. Page, choir director, Mrs. C. R. Baldwin, organist.

Bible school meets at 9:45 for an hour of song and lesson study; subject, "Abraham, a Pioneer of Faith.' Rev. and Mrs. Hudson and family are back and want to meet all the little folks. Come out and help make a grand start for a record attendance.

At the 11 o'clock service the pastor who will occupy the pulpit for the first time as a regularly ordained minister and will preach on the theme, "Restoring the Song." Come and lend your presence and encouragement. The choir will sing, "Dear to the Heart of the Shepherd."

Like Nehimiah of old, who rebuilt the broken-down walls of Jerusalem "we are doing a great work" here in Richmond, but we realize that it is a great task and our pastor can not do it alone. It will take the combined efforts of every man, woman and child who is already interested, or whom we hope to win, to place our church where it ought to stand in this community, one where young and old may attain high standards of spiritual life. May we count on you as one to help us put through this worthy program. And remember that wondrous things the lord can do with just a little help from you.

The choir will meet for practice on Thursday evening at 7:30.

Careless Man Causes Fire

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 5.—"Scra-a-a-tch! Sputter! Flame!" went a match as a passerby struck it on his shoe. One tiny piece of flaming sulphur executed a neat arc and lighted inside an open gasoline tank. Instantly flames shot in every direction and in a trice the fire department was there with chemicals to extinguish the blaze. Perceiving the pandemonium he had accidentally created, the match striker vanished.

RICHMAN SINGS IN RITZ PICTURE

In prominence of cast and the authentic atmosphere of Broadway, "Puttin' on the Ritz," United Artists' all-dialogue musical spectacle starring Harry Richman, coming to the Fox California today, promises to be the foremost offering in the record of talking, singing pictures.

The presence in the cast of Richman alone is sufficient to assure plenty of entertainment, for Richman has been one of New York's greatest attractions in musical comedy and night clubs for years.

Second only to Richman and Joan Bennett, leading lady, is James Gleason, an outstanding figure in the theatrical business, who does everything there is to do about the theater except take tickets. He is the author of "Is Zat So?" and "The Shannons of Broadway." In addition to writing these plays, he starred in them as well. He writes original screen stories and dialogue, acts in pictures and does odd jobs of directing on the side.

Purnell Pratt and Eddie Kane also prominent in the cast, are old favorites of the stage and consequently old hands at the business of entertainment.

Miss Bennett, who played on the stage in "Jarnegan," with her distinguished father, Richard Bennett, plays the lead opposite Richman. It is her fifth consecutive talking picture and in all of them she has scored outstanding successes.

Aileen Pringle and Lilyan Tashman, two of Hollywood's outstanding personalities, play prominent roles in the picture, and demonstrate that the western show center can hold its own with Broadway in providing entertainers.

"Puttin' on the Ritz," the story of which almost parallel's Richman's actual career as vaudeville performer, musical comedy star and night club king, was written by John W. Considine, Jr., and dialogued by William K. Wells.

BORN RECKLESS WITH LOWE AS STAR

Two sergeants, army and marine, three gangsters; three majors; 28 society men; five farmers; two princes and a half a dozen miscellaneous earls, dukes and baronets; a dope fiend; a plumber; a race driver; two bankers; a reporter.

No, this isn't the daily summary of a hotel register, it merely comprises some of the varied roles Edmund Lowe has played in his screen career during the past nine years. Though he has held "commissions" without number in military pictures, his portrayals of a "non-com" have won him his greatest acclaim, as witness "What Price Glory" "In Old Arizona" and "The Cock Eyed World."

His first gangster role was in "Dressed to Kill" which created something of a sensation in the late days of silent pictures. In his latest offering for Fox Movietone, "Born Reckless," which comes to the Fox-California theater Tuesday, he again plays the part of a gangster but one that is very different from the usual type of gunman of the screen.

Directed with remarkable dramatic force by John Ford, the maker of "Men Without Women" and "Four Sons," the production reveals for the first time the real truth about the commercial pirates of today. Catherine Dale Owens Lee Tracy, Warren Hymer, Marguerite Churchill, William Harrigan and Frank Albertson have the featured roles and Eddie Gribbon Paul Page, Pen Bard, Roy Stewart and Yola D'Avril are among the supporting players. Dudley Nichols wrote the screen play from Donald Henderson Clark's best selling novel, "Louie Beretti."

FLIERS BESET BY HORD OF MANAGERS

CHICAGO, July 5.—UP— The dazed Hunter brothers started on the road to fame and fortune today, flanked by six managers.

Hardly permitted to sleep after flying 23 days without stopping, John and Kenneth Hunter, farmer boys from Sparta, Ill., started to cash in on the longest flight in the history of the world, which ended last night at Sky Harbor airport.

The youths, who dug coal to buy their first airplane, had plenty of direction in their struggle toward fortune, most of it contradictory and some unsolicited.

John and Kenneth were awakened about noon in the bungalow atop the Sherman hotel by their sister, and cook, Irene. It took her an hour to get them out of bed after an eight hour sleep, but the managers were on the job bright and early.

After much haranguing and gesticulating, it was decided that the flier's first cash appearance would be at the Palace theater, to tell Saturday matinee crowds how they managed to keep their second-hand monoplane aloft. The decision was made only about an hour or so before the debut was scheduled and the Hunter boys, being better aviators than actors, immediately went into a huddle to learn the lines that hadn't been written.

Harry W. Perking, of St. Louis, emerged today with the title of "general manager." No one here seemed to know who appointed him, and his authority was challenged at intervals by the five others. Clyde Elliott assumed the title of "theatrical manager."

B. J. Majewski, who had acted at the airport, seemed to have lost out, and was dubbed "ex-manager." Wilson Herron and Mike Conroyd, who claim to own an interest in the record-breaking plane, also were on hand with advice in plentiful quantities, and on the outskirts of the ring around the fliers, was a man who called himself Benjamin Benjamin, and admitted that he, too, was a "manager."

MOONEY MAY BE ELIGIBLE FOR PARDON

court. Previous to the court's decision, Governor C. C. Young had made it known that he considered the cases of Mooney and Billings as being similar and entitled to the same treatment.

Life Terms

It was thought that the decision meant that both Mooney and Billings must continue serving their life terms to which they were sentenced after conviction of the San Francisco Preparedness Day parade bombing in 1916, in which 10 persons lost their lives.

It now appears, however, that there is a way out, being as follows:

1—Mooney is eligible for pardon
2—Billings is not eligible to a pardon, but is eligible to parole.

Up To Young

Thus, Governor Young, if he chooses to do so, may pardon Tom Mooney and parole Billings thru the recommendation of a parole board, appointed by the governor.

The reason that Mooney is now eligible for pardon and Billings is not, although both were convicted of the same crime, is due to the fact that Billings was convicted of illegal possession of dynamite prior to the Preparedness Day bombing while Mooney was without a prison record.

The law restricting pardon authority in cases similar to that of Billings, does not apply in the case of parole. Mooney has announced many times that he would refuse a parole, because he maintained acceptance would carry an inference of guilt. Billings has never expressed himself on this subject.

Doubt Arises

Indeed, there is doubt whether a convict could remain in prison should the state insist on granting him a parole.

Thus, the matter of a parole for Billings, and a pardon for Mooney rests squarely with Governor Young.

And the governor, it was learned, is under heavy pressure from many friends, all urging him to take this step.

They point out that it is California justice and the whole court and pardon system that is now on trial, not two convicts; that thousands who feel that there is a grave doubt as to the guilt of the two men, also feel that they have had only the mockery of a chance in the supreme court review.

They point out that Billings would probably accept a parole, even if Mooney gets a full pardon, realizing that the governor could do no more.

Train Is Halted At Bridge Edge

PORTLAND, Ore., July 5.—UP—The watchfulness of an engineer was probably all that saved the Union Pacific fast passenger train, Oregon Trail Express, from going through a burning trestle some 318 miles east of Portland between Huntington and La Grande late Saturday afternoon, according to advices received at the U. P. offices here.

As it was, the train locomotive was stopped as part of the burning piling of the bridge gave way and the big engine slipped downward against a steel abutment.

Because it remained upright on the tracks none were hurt beyond a few bumps and bruises it was reported.

Traffic over the bridge probably will be held up at least 36 hours.

PROTEST MADE TO FRANCE THE U. S.

By RALPH HUNZEN
United Press Staff Correspondent.

PARIS, July 5.—UP—A formal protest has been made by the United States government against the flow of liquor into the United States from the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, it was revealed today.

France willing to please Washington ,ordered the governor of the islands, J. H. E. Bensch, to control the liquor traffic closely and prevent irregularities.

Since Canada tightened its regulations governing the export of whiskey, the two tiny islands lying off the coast of Newfoundland have become the chief center of the liquor supply of the United States as far as imports are concerned.

The American protest was kept a close secret until the ministry of colonies confirmed it today. The ministry makes no effort to deny that the islands, once nothing but barren rock and the poorest of the French colonies, have come into great wealth and assumed real importance since Canada undertook to help the United States curb liquor runners.

Shiploads of 25,000 cases of liquor and wines leave French ports every week, destined for St. Pierre—a perfectly legal procedure. The liquor is delivered to commission men at St. Pierre who clear it from the islands for some destination other than the United States and then transfer it to an armada of small, fast, armed motor cruisers, which are equipped with wireless and usually make a safe and rapid journey to the Maine coast.

"When Canada closed her borders," a spokesman for the ministry of commerce said today, "there was a noticeable increase in the liquor traffic to St. Pierre. The French knew unusually heavy deliveries had been made in Maine, but since everything was legal on the surface, there was no means of preventing it.

"The protest of the United States asked France to curb the traffic. We studied the problem and decided to ask the governor to survey the situation and prevent anything irregular from taking place.

"The instructions to the governor were repeated today with the insistence that ships clearing from the islands possess regular orders. The governor was instructed definitely not to favor, but to oppose fraud. Naturally France is anxious to give Washington satisfaction."

There was an unofficial suggestion from French sources Washington should do more in the situation than merely lodge a protest. It was argued the islands, once a poverty-stricken base for fishermen had become rich and made one of France's most interesting colonies, being one of the few entirely populated by white people.

The French argument—unofficial—was that the islands were unlikely to abandon such a lucrative gold mine unless compensated, in some such form as by being given special fishing privileges in United States waters. It was hinted a definite proposal by the United States offering something in return for drying up the islands would be acceptable.

The two tiny islands, which have an area of only 93 square miles and a population of less than 5000 except in the fishing season, were retained by France under the treaty of Paris in 1763 by which France gave up all other territory in North America. The islands serve as stations for fishermen from Normandy and Brittany, who have the privileges of what is known as the "French coast" of Newfoundland, a stretch of about 250 miles between Cape Ray and Cape St. John.

DEATH FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF SHOOTING

EMELLE, Ala., July 5.—UP—A sheriff's posse late today searched for two negroes wanted in connection with a spectacular gun battle, cabin burning and lynching which had claimed four, possibly six lives here.

More than 150 men in the posse were led by Sheriff Will T. Scales of Livingstone, Sumter county, 15 miles southeast of here. Scant word of the progress of the manhunt found its way back to town, where this afternoon officers of the state law enforcement unit arrived to prevent a racial outbreak.

Peaceful negroes of the community kept to their houses, or rushed to the homes of white friends for protection. Fields remained untilled on many a negro plantation as all available whites joined in the pursuit. It was generally feared capture of the hunted negro might result in a second lynching.

The trouble began on Fourth of July afternoon when Clarence Boyd white auto accessories merchant of Emelle, demanded payment for a battery from Newt Robinson, negro, who promised to go home and return promptly with the money. The bill was several months overdue.

Between the time Boyd made the demand and late today, there occurred successively a gun battle at the Boyd place of business, where one death occurred, another gun battle at a negro cabin where five, possibly six other deaths occurred, including the lynching of Newt Robinson.

The dead:

Two unidentified negroes, burned to death when the posse fired the cabin.

The injured are: Clarence Boyd, attacked by the enraged negroes at his place of business, and Jim Ayers, one of the posse which stormed the negro cabin.

Instead of returning to Boyd's store with the money as promised, Newt Robinson returned with his father and three other members of his family, all heavily armed, witnesses said.

Boyd asked for the promised money, but was set upon and badly beaten.

Grover Boyd, an uncle who observed what was going on, rushed to his automobile for a revolver and opened fire. He was believed to have wounded the elder Robinson.

One of the negroes, however, returned his fire and shot him, killing him instantly.

The elder Robinson, wounded by Grover Boyd and two other members of his family, fled in their automobile but Esau was captured at the scene of the original trouble, held all night and lynched early today.

Bloodhounds from Meridian, Miss. a few miles from here, were pressed into service and tracked a trail of blood from the Boyd store to the cabin of John Robinson, uncle of the negro whose unpaid bill started the fight.

A barrage of buckshot greeted the posse as it approached the cabin. Charles Marrs, plantation overseer, fell mortally wounded; Jim Ayers, a farmer, was shot but not seriously wounded. The owner of the cabin rushed out with a rifle in his hands and was dropped in his tracks by a bullet in his head.

Members of the posse then set firs to the cabin in which two negroes were believed burned to death. Their exact identity had not been established but it was believed they were brothers of Esau Robinson.

Esau, meanwhile, had been captured, and was hanged from a tree near his home today. His body was found riddled with bullets, indicating he had been killed before being hanged.

After the lynching, search was instituted for the elder Robinson.

BALLOONS IN FLIGHT FOR TROPHY

HOUSTON, Texas, July 5.—UP—Riding before a steady breeze, 15 huge gas bags in the National Balloon race were covering mile after mile northeastward tonight, after leaving Texas behind them.

The 15 balloons — nine commercial, three army, three navy—took off from Houston at dusk Friday, with the Litchfield trophy at stake, as well as the right to represent the United States in the International Gordon Bennett trophy race in Cleveland.

All Friday night and Saturday morning, the bags drifted north over Texas, until shortly before noon they passed over the state line, most of them crossing into Arkansas near Texarkana.

They will drift with the breeze, these pilots, with no rudder, no power except the wind, no method of control except ballast and very rapidly losing that.

During the day the hydrogen gas expands and some evaporates. At night, when the bag cools, the gas contracts and ballast must be thrown over to keep altitude.

Eventually, the balloons, with ballast and gas nearly exhausted, will be forced to land. They hope to equal the record of 1,027 miles made from San Antonio in the 1927 race.

The "City of Houston," piloted by Lieut. Otto Weinecke, was reported aloft near Avery, Texas, in the Red River country, a few miles south of the Oklahoma line this afternoon.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 5—UP—(5:42 p. m.)—A balloon entry in the national air races was reported sighted near Ashdown, Ark., about noon today by Ted Hulbert, airplant pilot, who reported to airport authorities here this afternoon. Hulbert said he saw the pilots hurriedly throwing ballast from the bag to clear a tree. He believed it was descending.

The John Robinson cabin was found to contain what Sheriff Scales described as a young arsenal, including a large store of ammunition which exploded when the cabin burned.

Today's lynching was the first recorded in Alabama in four years.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

A Million Happy Vacations!

OR a million New York boys and girls school's out until September—
And the least any woman with a naturally sympathetic interest in youth can do
Is to wish the youngsters a million happy vacations.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

They won't, of course, all be what vacations should be:
There are the thousands of too-early-burdened city boys and girls
Who take out working papers, and turn holidays into working days.
This year they will have a harder time than ever,
For a warning already has been issued
That, because of the unemployment crisis, jobs for schoolboys and schoolgirls will be almost impossible to find—
There are fewer jobs, more adult workers willing to take them
Even at adolescent wages,
So that many of the children, whose summer vacation is such in name only,
Will wait and hunt and worry, looking for work.
And be just as tired as if they were working—and more discouraged.
Oh, it's a sin and a shame that any young thing should have to spend a vacation in this fashion!
Then, there are the other luckless city children—
They will not wear out their health and strength at precocious toil.
But they will be hurt, even killed, as a summer sacrifice
To crowded city streets and careless drivers of motor cars.
Children set free from school long for outdoor play.
They ought to have it—but at what hazards do they snatch it
In New York that was never made to be a children's playground!
Two hundred children were killed in the streets of this city
During last year's summer vacation.
Many more were injured, perhaps permanently disabled.
There are mothers in the congested districts who cannot take or send their children away,
Whose whole summer life must be one long anguish of apprehension—
It is a cruel consequence of our civilization
That the play-days which children need and deserve should be forever threatened
By our cars of Juggernaut!
If only all New York youngsters might enjoy
The summer vacation which waits for the lucky ones!
Every child, wherever he lives, ought in summer to go back to the outdoor world
Of wave and wind, of sky and flower,
Which is the natural nursery for all young things.
He ought to go to the sea, or the hills, or the country fields—
And go native!
When we were a child, we stayed on the beach twelve hours a day—
Scrambling over rocks, hunting crabs and starfish and seaweed,
Wading, digging, living with sunlight and sea,
Dressed in a sailor suit which couldn't be torn
And which could get wet and sandy without rebuke.
Or, in the country, we tramped the woods and fields,
Picking daisies and cardinal flower, wood and meadow lilies, jewel weed, wild geranium, ferns,
And every berry that grows—
Following the little brown brook through the pines,
Building, under them, doll-houses thatched with pine needles,
Feeding the old trout in the spring,
Helping in the hay field and the garden,
Watching the sun set over the hill, across the westetrn pasture.
It was the quietest summer vacation, the healthiest, the simplest,
Yet it was—it is—the vacation which makes a child utterly well and strong,
Which leaves in his heart a memory of a wild and beautiful world,
That cannot be spoiled or destroyed
By all the years of din and rush and excitement
In the city life which most of us have to live, when we grow up.
An outdoor vacation of freedom and beauty is a part of every child's heritage—
Why must so many of our million in New York be cheated?

DOLLIES

(The eight dolls which were presented to Col. Lindbergh at the time of his across-the-ocean flight and which have been in a glass case in the Jefferson Memorial, in St. Louis, may be sent to the Lindbergh baby.—News item.)

Eight little dollies, gifts to Colonel "We,"
Ho! What use to flyers can little dollies be?

Dollies plump and funny, dollies long and quaint,
Dollies wigged and curly, and pink-and-white with paint;

Who would give an Eagle such a tribute? Why
Should one send such playthings to brave young men who fly?

—Dollies limp and useless, dollies wistful, sad,
Living lives as aimless as dolly ever had.

Dollies all unsullied, clothing crisp and chaste,
Dollies living bleakly, coldly glass-encased. . . .

Now they're gay and cheerful, now it's different, quite,
Now broad smiles are wreathing their faces, pink and white.

Now they'll have a Reason. Useful they will be,
Cuddled, hugged and teethed-on by famous Baby "We."

SAD AWAKENING

"Shed a tear for my lost illusions,
Heave a sigh for my vanished youth,
I've found—God help me bear it—
That men do not tell the truth!"
"Awakening," by Kasia R. Gage, in THE WOMAN OF IT.

"Shed a tear for her lost illusions—
Or smile at those cherished still?
Men may not utter their true thoughts!
Does Miss Gage think a woman will?"
"Wake Again," by J. Ryan, in THE WOMAN OF IT.

Shed a tear for candor's confusions—
Truth crushed—and the part that is sad
Is, I fear, that the man-made delusions
For the time had made Kasia glad.

Get Daughter's Confidence

MARION is a business girl. She has many invitations, and her dad declared, "It is not right for a decent girl to come home all hours of the night," and he was going to put a stop to it, but Marion has a sensible mother.

She knows there is nothing gained by forbidding her daughter to go out nights and it would be preposterous to expect this of a popular young girl to-day. She realizes the folly of antagonizing the girl or making home unpleasant for her. She knows this parental mistake explains to a large extent the increasing prevalence of the bachelor maid apartment and she would rather have her girl living at home.

So she interests herself in Marion's friends and all her doings. She always knows where her girl is going and with whom she is going. When Marion comes home she finds mother, and sometimes dad, too, waiting for her. She remonstrates with them but mother pleasantly asserts she could not sleep until the family were all safe at home. Marion is not nagged aout "gadding all the time," nor is she reprimanded for staying out late—fact is, the knowledge that her parents will not retire until she gets home makes her considerate about keeping them up too late.

Of course, mother being interested, has to hear where the young folks went, and Marion eagerly tells her all about it. This, naturally, keeps her from pleasures she could not tell mother about.

These methods have been followed in this home for two years. It is working out splendidly and dad has decided that girls may be different than they were in his day, but if you treat them right they will not go wrong.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Not only delicatessens but most New York markets take over the major burdens of the cook and simplify her work as much as possible. Thus, it is possible to have delicious fresh lobster without the labor of boiling it. It can be bought reasonably, freshly-cooked and with all the inedible parts removed.

KAREN GOLLAS

Perhaps it isn't really the labor of boiling lobsters that we mind. In my own case it is an aversion to plunging them into boiling water; an aversion that has been insurmountable ever since the day that I put two live lobsters down on the front porch and held a race. When the race was over, I placed them in a basket, drove to the Sound, went out in a boat and dropped them overboard with my best wishes for a happy life far from lobster pots.

My tender-heartedness does not extend, however, to the cooked lobster, so different in appearance. So, with no qualms of any sort, I can recommend this delicious curried lobster, a favored dish up on the coast of Maine.

CURRIED LOBSTER

2 cups diced lobster meat, cooked or canned
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons curry powder
1½ cups milk

Melt the butter in a saucepan and add the onion, cooking until it is yellow, but not brown. Stir in the flour and curry powder, which have been mixed together, and when smooth add the milk, a little at a time. When the sauce has thickened and is smooth and creamy, add the lobster. As soon as thoroughly heated, serve on toast.

Health Rules for Ferns

By Karin Broberg

FERNS require a moist shady situation. They may be grown under trees, about the edge of a pond, or along the sides of a stream. A beautiful effect may be attained by planting spring flowering bulbs among the ferns. The fronds of ferns start to unfold early in the spring.

Only a few ferns will grow in the sun. Always try to select a location which will imitate their natural habitat in the woods. Generally speaking, shady and semi-shady places suit them best. Usually they do well when planted under trees or around tall shrubbery. In both places they will be more or less protected from the hot sun and dry winds. Ferns are invaluable for a rock garden.

While ferns are moisture loving plants they must have good drainage. An excellent plan to follow is to raise the fern beds about four or five inches. This will insure drainage. During July and August give the ferns plenty of water.

The soil for ferns must be light and porous. If the soil is clay or very poor, enrich it with plenty of leaf mould or peat. Bone meal is a very good fertilizer for ferns. Never plant ferns too deeply; one inch of covering is all that most varieties require. Those that grow from crowns should merely be set on top of the soil. Do not cover these crowns. If you want to plant ferns along the walk you had better plant the gossamer ferns, as these plants will grow in shade or sun.

There are two times for resetting ferns. The first is in the spring and the second is in August. In either case there will be plenty of time for a new set of fronds to come while the roots are getting established. Always cut back the fronds when resetting ferns.

Snapshots of the New Styles

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

DO YOU realize that, just about now, next winter's styles are being pored over, admired, discarded, and even bought by buyers who hope to heaven that they know what you will like come the first cool days of fall?

The first French imports are here from what are known as the mid-season openings in Paris. Styles are marching on, evolving, developing, becoming more refined as to design and, in some cases, much more beautiful.

I am flying around from opening to opening looking at furs while the weather swelters, but I will dive in now and give you my first impressions as they crowd to the point of the pencil—no use to try to sort them out and assemble them into things called classifications. That can't be done while the idea is so new. So, here goes for a shower of snapshots just as they come trooping along.

News Item No. 1. The belt for the larger figures or any who desire the line, has been lowered to the top of the hip bone—to "elbow length," they put it. This had to be done, and it is most satisfactory as shown.

News Item No. 2. Skirts are really coming down—even tweeds, to twelve inches from the ground—even the sportiest of sport clothes. Bad news for the tall—good news for the short and God's blessing for those whose lower limbs have developed in one of the many outlandish ways that legs have of doing these things.

Tweeds are best in type when the coats are long, fitted at the waistlines, flaring as to skirts with matching or well contrasting dresses in tweed or silk or some harmonizing woolen material. Witness a green-gray tweed with light green lining for coat, attached scarf and a light green blouse—the coat this time being short and tailored, representing another type of tweed very much favored.

The Bolero crept upon us in the spring quite harmlessly and, left to American designers, it might have died a natural death. But the Parisian coutourier comes back with the bolero magnified and spiritualized. They compose it cleverly on the sides only—confine it to the back, leave it to the front—for the evening dress diagonally across the back. In only a few instances for the new season is it left in its pure and uninterrupted form.

Skirts flow from the knee down in all manner of interesting details—low flares, godets, pleats, inverted box pleats with pleces set between the pleats and so on. They are set on fitted yokes, and be it said the peplum is still strong—good looking in design and certainly good style for those whose figures can set it off.

Sleeves are most particularly interesting. No more plain sleeves to be seen. But high cuffs of lace—one that flares even as high as the elbow, the three-quarter bell sleeve for formal afternoon gowns. These are lovely when faced with a contrasting color or appliqued with cut-out silk flowers on their inside areas—say black dress with pale pink for facing or brown with green.

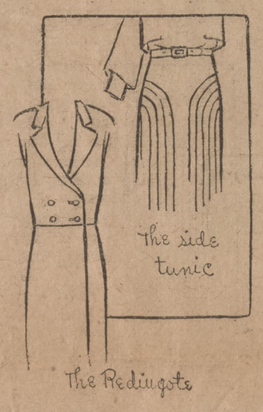
Tunics are back—knee length or finger tip. Beautifully woven metal cloths are used for these, or velvets, heavy satins or crepe Roma.

Redingote—fitted and seamed to the waistline—double breasted from which the skirt flares away. This is a high fashion which, I expect, will gain importance in the fall.

Coat dresses are numerous in wools or silks for street wear. As a leading fashion they are done in Lyons velvet for formal afternoon occasions.

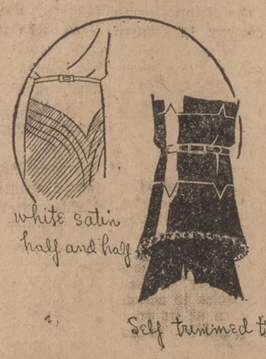
Beads are back. But, oh, they must be done so delicately—embroidered seed pearls, and colors too—on the patterning of an Alencon lace yoke. Embroidered again on georgette collars and cuffs in ever so restained a manner. Beads cannot be overdone, or they do away with themselves, as happened once before—and not so long ago either—in the history of fashion. They send word from the precincts of style in Paris that beaded evening dresses are here again. I won't go into that now. I'll leave the subject alone as long as I dare, for what women unrestrained can do with beaded dresses is nobody's business.



Stiff Velvet is important—for suits and for formal dressing generally. Praise be that velvet of all kinds will be kept in its place this year—not forced for July selling but reserved for later on when a velvet dress—especially one beautifully made of beautiful material—is in its glory.

Two Material Dresses are very new. The skirt of tweed, for instance, with the waist of silk running down over the hips to meet the skirt. Or the process is reversed and the waist section will be made of some soft cloth and the skirt of heavy silk. This time the skirt may run up on to the waist. You will see a sketch of this in the illustration.

So it goes—new things are crowding in. I will report more of them as space and time permit.



Large Linen Handbags

JUST right for the essentially summer costume is a new envelope of linen, perfectly plain and tailored, with no other decoration than a striking ring clasp and a lining in a contrasting color. The white bag is contrasted with its note of black or vice versa; yellow and pink likewise with black; natural linen has its lining of deeper tan shade; similarly, blue is emphasized by navy and light green with a matching shade.

Rubber Ornament

THE heavy evening necklace may be light in weight indeed. An extremely smart one for sportswear is made of thin strands of pastel tinted rubber in three-color scheme, the strands held at intervals with narrow gilt bands. This necklace is sufficiently wide to relieve the severity of a collarless neckline, seen in numerous of the pastel silk sports frocks.

What Your Baby Needs

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

TWO mothers were sitting on a park bench and their babies were asleep. One was lying in the perambulator with the hood thrown back and the other was on a blanket on the grass. Both infants were bareheaded as, of course, they should be, their faces were upturned and the hot sun was beating down on them.

When a passing woman kindly told the mothers this exposure to the sun was dangerous to the children, one of the mothers retorted: "Is that so? Well, I read in a magazine that sunlight is absolutely necessary for the young child," and the other mother gave the information that her doctor said the sun treatment was bringing about some wonderful cures.

It seems incredible that intelligent women would make such an erroneous application. Let us hope the innocent babies were none the worse for their exposure.

It is very true that sunlight is absolutely necessary for young children, but this by no means implies children should be exposed to the direct rays of the sun on a hot day and at no time should the sunlight shine directly on the face—even lying with the face upturned in the strong daylight is an eye strain.

By all means keep the babies in the fresh air during the summer. Let them sleep outdoors and live outdoors all day long, but on hot days keep them in the coolest spots available, under a tree, in the protection of bushes or on the porch. Protect the perambulator against flies and insects; also have the portable playyard screened. If this is supplied with a protective mattress the child may take his daytime naps there. If there are no cool, shady places outdoors, it is better to keep baby indoors between 2 and 5 P. M. on hot days.

Getting fresh air does not mean the wind must blow over the baby. Even in midsummer the child should be protected against drafts. The windows in the infant's sleeping room should be kept open day and night during the summer.

Fresh air is necessary to establish and maintain a healthy circulation, and this is quite as essential to the baby's health and growth as proper food.

If you are an apartment dweller and must take your baby out in the perambulator for the airing, keep on the shady side of the street on hot days, and in your eagerness to give your baby all possible fresh air, do not drop the hood so as to expose him to danger. Remember, the sun should never be allowed to shine directly into his eyes whether he is awake or asleep, and the wind should never blow in his face.

Oh, Go To Bed

"Certainly, it does."
"Why doesn't B-E-A-R spell beer?"
"Oh, go to bed."

Good to Know

Ironing silks makes them tender even though the iron is moderately hot. Silk stockings should never be ironed. They can be gently pulled and smoothed into perfect shape or they may be dried on stocking forms.

TELLING THE WORLD

By Neal O'Hara

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

THEY NEVER LET UP

A RADIO announcer at home:

ANNOUNCER—Hello, darling. I've had a hard afternoon at the studio.

WIFE—Poor dear, you must be famished. I'll see if Jenny is ready with the meal.

ANNOUNCER—Don't hurry. When the gong strikes it will be exactly dinner time, Eastern daylight saving time.

WIFE—Let me hang up your hat for you.

ANNOUNCER—The Blox hat is one of the outstanding models of American headgear. It comes in one-eighth sizes and fits the personality. Leading dealers everywhere carry them.

WIFE—Yes, I suppose so, dear. Well, dinner's ready now.

ANNOUNCER — Ah, yes; dinner. Please stand by while your local announcer says grace before meals. . . . You have just heard grace said by your local announcer, dear, and the next number will be soup.

WIFE—I hope you'll like it. It's cream of tomato.

ANNOUNCER—Cream of tomato, known from coast to coast for its purity. Made only from luscious, prime tomatoes, plucked from the vines at just the ripe time. Ask your grocer. It's delicious, my dear.

* * *

WIFE—Please pass me the salt.

ANNOUNCER—Certainly. . . . You have just been passed the salt through the courtesy of Graham Carlenshire, premier announcer of this hook-up, whose golden voice is welcomed in 10,000,000 American homes. Darling, that soup was fine!

WIFE—Now I've got a nice roast of beef.

ANNOUNCER—Folks, you have just heard Mr. and Mrs. Graham Carlenshire eating their soup and I know you've enjoyed listening. As is customary at this hour, we shall now follow it with a tasty program of roast beef, accompanied on the platter by mashed potatoes and G-string beans. Well, my love, what have you been doing to-day?

WIFE—Shopping.

ANNOUNCER—Chopin, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience, was one of the leading composers of the eighteenth century. Perhaps the most famous work of this Slavik genius is his "Marche Militaire." His life was sad and morose. Chopin, were you, my dear? What did you buy?

WIFE—Well, I finally got an electric ice box for the kitchen.

ANNOUNCER—Ah, most likely a product of General Motors, through whose benevolence the Family Party comes to you each week. A Nation-wide organization that manufactures a car for every purse and purpose. How many ice cubes will it freeze, my dear?

* * *

WIFE—Thirty-six.

ANNOUNCER—Ladies and gentlemen, the number you have just heard is thirty-six. Thirty-six, the lucky number. Reach for a lucky instead and avoid that future shadow by a special toasting process. That reminds me, dear, Jenny burned the toast this morning.

WIFE—I'll speak to her about it, but wasn't that roast beef all right?

ANNOUNCER—It was perfect. Now, what's the dessert?

WIFE—Orange sherbet.

ANNOUNCER—Folks, we next have sherbet from the orange network, consisting of Stations WBIF, WNOX, WBVL, WCK, WBUM, KHT and KVX, forming a part of th great National Broadcasting system. Well, well—orange sherbet—my favorite dish.

WIFE—You tear into it as if you liked it.

ANNOUNCER—It was marvelous, my dear. And this, ladies and gentlemen of radioland, concludes the evening meal of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Carlenshire. At this hour to-morrow evening we will have our usual family dinner of spring lamb and mint sauce. Good night, everybody—now I'm going to have a smoke.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

WATER RAISES FOUR FEET IN JUNE

Although California is classed by engineers as a hard water state, water being delivered to the East Bay cities places us definitely in the soft water class, according to the current report of Frank W. Hanna, chief engineer and general manager of the East Bay Municipal Utility District.

Water engineers divide the United States into four great districts. Nineteen states have a hardness in their water of less than 55 parts per million; seven run over 56 to 100; thirteen are from 101 to 200; and nine are from 200 up. California as a whole is in the hard water class, with water averaging from 101 to 200.

Water now being served from San Pablo and Upper San Leandro reservoirs average about 10 parts, putting this district in the same class as the seven states of the second division.

The water from Pardee reservoir is only forty parts per million, this being as soft as the water in any of the four groups anywhere in the United States. The increase of thirty parts in hardness arises from the fact that water running off the local water shed is harder than the mountain supply and the mixture of the two in the local reservoirs figure up about seventy, according to Hanna's report.

"In the future it is likely that a good deal of our supply will be furnished direct to the consumer from the Pardee reservoir without being mixed with any of the local water," said Hanna. "When this happens we will be enjoying a water with only forty parts per million of hardness and will be enjoying water as good as that in the softest water group."

Hanna's report showed that the nine cities making up the district are now using forty-two million gallons of water daily and that the figures are now nearing the summer peak. Both Upper San Leandro and San Pablo, the two large storage reservoirs, are still showing substantial gain, despite the heavy draft. San Pablo rose nearly four feet during the last month and Upper San Leandro a little over two feet.

Mokelumne water is still arriving at the rate of sixty-five million gallons daily and one day during the last month the aqueduct carried seventy million gallons. Pardee reservoir is still full but has stopped flowing over the spillway.

The district collected $434,449.96 in cash at the business offices during the month of June, Hanna reported. There were 174 applications for new services of which 89 were in Oakland, 58 in Berkeley, 7 in Alameda and 20 in Richmond. Service men for the district travelled 17,947 miles by automobile during the last month in the performance of their duties.

NO EXCUSE FOR A "SPLITTING HEAD"

There's no need for an aching head to spoil your day. At the first warning throb take Dillard's Aspergum. Chew it a few minutes. Almost before you realize it, you have chewed the pain away. It's as simple as that—no trouble, and harmless—for Dillard's Aspergum is the new and easier way to take aspirin.

Dillard's Aspergum is the finest aspirin in delicious chewing gum form. You can take it any time—any place. You need no water to gulp it down. There is no unpleasant taste—no choking.

Because you chew Dillard's Aspergum the aspirin mixes thoroughly with the saliva so that all its soothing qualities are effective quickly, continuously.

Keep a package of Aspergum on hand for quick, harmless relief from the pain of headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, etc. It helps break up a cold, and soothes irritated throats, even such severe cases as follow tonsil operations. If your druggist does not have Dillard's Aspergum, send for free sample to Health Products Corporation, Dept. A, 113 North 13th Street, Newark, N. J.

MAILMEN CLOSE CONCLAVE WITH BANQUET

As the 28th annual convention of California Letter Carriers' association came to a close yesterday, it was announced that the 1931 convention would be held in Riverside.

With five of California's leading cities bidding for the 1931 conventon, the Riverside site was finally selected. Los Angeles, San Francisco, Riverside, Oakland and Sacramento were the contestants.

In closing the 1930 convention, a sumptuous banquet was served at the Hotel Carquinez, which was attended by more than 120 delegates.

Postmaster John A. Miller was chairman of the evening and the City of Richmond was represented by Mrs. Mattie Chandler.

A. R. Dickinson, newly elected president of the association, made an impressive speech, declaring that the 1930 convention was one of the most successful ever held and that the delegates had been given a wonderful reception by the citizens. He said Richmond was one of the most progressive cities he had seen, and prophesied a rapid enlargement of the town.

Mrs. H. Newman, newly elected president of the auxiliary, which met simultaneously with the men's association, thanked the gathering and the City of Richmond for the reception they had received.

Entertainment was provided as follows. Vocal solos by Herbert Caswell; accordion solos by Harold Feliciano; solos by Harry Mylander, accompanied by Denny Shaw. Mylander also led the community singing, which was followed by speeches by W. F. Martin, past president, and Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Clem, secretaries of the men's group and auxiliary.

A tap dance was given by Mitchell Williams, and the evening was closed with a speech by Dr. Thomas A. Boyer.

Boyer made a very impressive speech basing his talk on "Where Do We Go From Here?"

The entire Richmond post office personnel attended the banquet in a body and were introduced individually.

At the election of officers yesterday, A. R. Dickenson of Corona, was elected president, succeeding W. F. Martin, of Santa Maria.

Other officers elected were: J. W. Wardlow, of Sacramento, vice president; T. J. McDonald, of Holtville, treasurer; N. M. Clem of Oak Grove, secretary. On the executive committee will be Welch Newman, Rivera; T. J. Montgomery, Turlock; and Royal J. Stump of Watsonville.

P. S. Jewell of Downey was selected as delegate to the national convention.

Meeting simultaneously, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Rural Mail carriers association, elected Mrs. Irma Newman of Rivera, as president, to succeed Mrs. N. M. Clem. Other officers elected in the auxiliary were: Mrs. Edna Gray of Clovis, vice-president; Mrs. Freda McDaniels of Sacramento, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Eleanor Dunlop of Watsonville, publicity chairman and Mrs. Mary Weatherbee, of Goleta, historian. Delegates to the national meet will be Mrs. Irma Newman and Mrs. Weatherbee, with Mrs. E. H. Hamilton of Madera, as alternate.

Yesterday afternoon a short business session was held in Memorial hall by the men and the auxiliary delegates went on a shopping tour. Later in the afternoon, a tour of the city was provided for the visitors.

The Fourth of July was celebrated by the delegates with a program arranged by the Richmond committee. In the morning the delegates and their wives were guests of the city at a swimming party at the Municipal natatorium and at night a theater party was held at the Fox California theater.

In the afternoon Friday, reports of officers, committees and reports of the national convention occupied the session.

DEPARTURE OF CAMP FIRE GIRLS

A group of eight Camp Fire girls will leave Richmond today for two weeks summer camp in Newana, Camp Meeker. The local girls are members of a party of more than 50 Contra Costa Camp Fire members.

The local campers are: Martha and Mary Baldwin, Gladys Blount, Phyllis Haley, Pauline Lund, Phyllis Sweet, Marianne Whiting and Edeline Winters.

Josephine Whitbeck and Maude Wood will act as guardians for the local girls. Meals will be under the supervision of Mrs. Peter Larsen.

The camp will be directed by Helen Searls of Crockett. Instruction in camp craft will be given by Maude Wood, while camp fire songs will be taught by Mrs. Sturdy of Concord and Mrs. Ruth Fisher of Vallejo. Mrs. Clara Meservy of Vallejo will also be present as a guardian. All of these camp directors have had special previous training in camp administration.

Additional interest has been given to water sports at the camp by the donation of an eight foot flat bottom boat from which girls may take their "flying fish" test and by the presentation of two slides by Mr. Meeker.

Hand craft, woodwork, outdoor cooking, swimming, boating, and Camp Fire lore will also be included in the camp carriculum.

Influx Of People Is Expected

CONCORD, July 5.—Anticipating an influx of population as the result of the construction of the Shell company's $5,000,000 nitrogen plant, five miles from here, Charles H. Guy, president of the Concord Chamber of Commerce, has appointed a committee to investigate housing conditions here. The new plant, the construction of which will require more than 1000 men will be located in the Ambrose district, off the Willow Pass highway, and Guy believes many of the workers will live in Concord.

B. Y. P. U. Convene At San Francisco

The Baptist Young People's Union of America will hold its 39th annual convention in San Francisco from July 9 to 13 inclusive, and arrangements have been made for the reception and entertainment of a record attendance of delegates.

California Leads State In New Census

WASHINGTON, July 5.—According to the Census bureau in Washington, D. C., half of the United States have completed the decennial census, and California shows the greatest gain in population.

In gaining 64.6 percent, California passed both Michigan and Massachusetts. Vermont, increasing but 1.9 percent, showed the least augmentation.

As far as the census has progressed, not a single state has shown a loss in population. Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia reported populations totaling 50,198,950, a combined gain of 7,444,129 over the 1920 population or 17.4 percent.

According to the census bureau, a 17.4 percent increase over the 1920 census would make a 1930 population of 124,104,267.

READ THE "RICHMOND UNITED"

Here each month are found articles and illustrations proving by a recital of actual developments that Richmond is in truth "Industry's Western Goal."

If a new industry signs up, a great dredging program is launched, or new plans for civic improvement are being considered, you will find the whole story in "Richmond United."

And when it is printed in the "United" it is official and authoritative. The Chamber of Commerce releases no development news until the papers are signed, sealed and delivered.

The "United" is the official Chamber publication and is mailed to members. There are always a few extra copies for non-members who are interested.

The July number tells of the starting of the Filice and Perrelli cannery; the situation regarding the Ford plant as it stands to date; a description of the MacMillan Oil company's plans for a new distribution plant; Richmond's fight for equitable rates to the northwest, and other matters of public interest.

Read the "United" and keep informed on Richmond's industrial progress.
